Part of ARDA WEEK 2025,
7 to 11 April 2025, on private invitation only

The African Downstream Landscape

Africa's growing population and economies raise critical questions about how the rising energy requirements will be met.

Energy transition, LPG investment, refining, storage, product flows and supply chain challenges are issues that affect all players in the downstream.

CITAC's interactive workshops on the African downstream energy sector will provide you with actionable insights and discussions to enable you to be an active player in these dynamic developments, discussing business cases and covering topical subjects such as:

- The financial realities of scaling Clean Cooking/LPG in Sub-Saharan Africa - James McCullagh
- Supply chain management: how small changes can lead to large cash savings - Bruce Hutchison
- The future of African retail - Elitsa Georgieva
- Asset utilisation in Sub-Saharan Africa – where is investment needed? - Jeremy Parker

You will learn about refining, distribution, marketing and financing developments in the African downstream energy sector and will share experiences with pan-African and international companies.

The CITAC African Downstream Workshops offer you an unparalleled forum for networking with key players in the sector, including refiners, marketers, national oil companies, regulators, international and local traders, banks, storage and distribution companies, and more.
